Interesting History

This article appeared in the Dec/Jan 1947 'Collie & Shetland Sheepdog Review'. This was the first 'combined' issue of the magazine. Written by Dr. J.P. McCain.

Dr. McCain was a very well liked and sought after judge, for Collies and Shelties and I believe other breeds as well.

"He bred Collies under the kennel name Cainbrooke and was the first black judge licensed by the AKC."

Pat Ferrell
ASSA Historian

"A Judge Talks Back !!!"

Dr. J.P. McCain, Pittsburgh, Penn.

(It seems that every time we pick up a magazine these days, there is the inevitable article criticizing the judges. To fairly present all sides, Dr. McCain, who is still remembered by 'Review' readers for his much discussed article on 'Conservation of Puppies', has written his views on the matter. That he does so, in the same hard-hitting but logical manner, is evident by the following article.)

"There is now, and has been for some time, an agitation movement for better and more experienced judging of Collies. I think the exhibitors have a case there, for some of our judging has been far from satisfactory. While we are agitating for better and more competent judging, however, I wish to add my bit to the agitation for more competent exhibitors.

It is the easiest thing in the world to stand outside the ring and find a myriad of faults with the way the judge is placing his choices, but it is another thing to go in and place them correctly yourself. Remember, this is mainly a plea on my part for the exhibitor to learn his breed before he begins to find fault.

There is far too much second guessing from the ringside, and far too many exhibitors who are seeing their first or second dog show, who set themselves up as authorities on the breed judged! They are free with their comments and criticisms, thus prejudicing the spectators against the judge who may be doing a very competent job. I have noticed that those who know their breed best are the slowest to criticize. A wise spectator realizes there are so many things that the judge encounters inside the ring that are impossible for the outsider to see and appreciate. When you enter your dog at a show, you make a contract to take the decision of the judge. You pay your fee for his opinion. What he decides is not final, it is simply his opinion. It makes your dog no better if he puts him up and no worse if he puts him down. If you do not have faith in the judge's opinion, then it will be far better for you to keep your dogs at home.

Often inside the ring the judge runs into difficulties which are in no way apparent to the ringsiders; then he must make his own interpretation of points in split seconds. In this time, may I cite a personal happening or two to illustrate.

At one of my first shows and in the first class, Puppy Dogs, the dogs came in and paraded. There was one puppy in the class who stood out head and shoulders above all the others. This fact was apparent to the barest novice at the ringside. In going over the pups, I discovered that this particular pup had undescended testicles. What was I to do? If I turned this puppy down or did not place him, there would have been a howl from the ringside for there was none close to him in quality. The owner of the pup was a novice exhibitor and did not even know of this fault in his own pup. I placed the pup first because at the age there was a good chance for the testicles to descend later, but suppose it had been a grown dog? - I would have had to disqualify him, and you may well imagine what a furor this would have created!

Another instance: I was judging a bitch class; two excellent bitches were in this class along with others that were not so good. Anyone could tell at a glance that the class would narrow down between these two. One bitch had an almost perfect head. While she was right in eye, ears, and expression, she was stilted behind and lacking in bone and substance, but she had an immense coat which covered these faults. The other bitch had a good head, not as good as the first mentioned, but she had bone and substance - she was right behind and had a good coat. In evaluating the two I felt that the bitch with the not quite so good head, but good enough, should get the Blue and I proceeded to place them that way. There was an immediate audible howl from the ringside as to how bad the placing was. Someone, probably the owner of the bitch that I placed second, was angry, or perhaps it was a ringside expert who could only see the head and have never had his hand on either bitch. It makes little difference to the spectator. The wrong placing, as far as they were concerned, had taken place.

Another case: Two dogs of almost equal quality competing for winners. There was some comment when I put up one that was just out, the other dog having won several shows. When the dogs first came into the ring, I thought I would put up the dog that had done a considerable amount of winning. I had seen this dog at several shows and had admired him, but I had never examined him closely and critically up to now. When I did so, I found that he was badly undershot, a very rare condition among Collies. This fact caused me to turn him down. After the show, I asked several experts who had seen this dog if they knew this fact. They did not.

These things have taught me how wrong one may be in indulging in "out-side-the-ring judging". I do not say for one instant that there is not a lot of incompetency, doing our Breed and others. Why a man will accept an assignment to do a Breed when he knows that he is not familiar with them, is beyond me. Of course, sometimes when we think we are competent we are not, but I feel that most judges are honest and try to do a good job. Theirs is a thankless task, but if a judge honestly feels within himself that he has done a good job without fear or favor then he should be completely satisfied. There must be some good judges, but I hear much against those whom I consider the best. I well remember the late Dr. Bennett telling me that he would never judge another show because of the criticism and maligning he received. If anyone in America knew Collies - Dr. Bennett knew them, and yet he was derided and vilified about his placings. No man can please every exhibitor, and only one dog can win. Most of your judges are breeders and know your side of the story. They know how you have spent eatless days and sleepless nights toiling with and worrying about your hopeful. They know what trouble and expense was entailed to get this hopeful to the shows and to have all your work, toil, and tears nullified in a few minutes when he is put down, especially if he deserves to go up. We are thinking about all this when we are judging them in there, and for that reason we put forth our best efforts to give the dog just what he deserves. The judge is happy when he can place a good one, for it is a pleasure to justify your judgement and reward your efforts, but remember that most of the other exhibitors have gone through the same thing and all are hoping for their reward. It is human to feel keen disappointment when our best laid plans - "Gang aft agley" - but please, let me beg you not to let disappointment turn into vindictiveness and malice. Remember that winning is not the whole thing. The game is the thing and to be a good and graceful loser is as fine as being a good and modest winner.

Now that I have taken the exhibitors to task and given them a mild spanking as it were, I shall continue with my subject on judging inside the ring. As we know, none of us are perfect, therefore, there never was and never will be a perfect job of judging, but at least all of us are entitled to a reasonable performance. In the study of Medical Jurisprudence we find there a chapter on the relation of the patient to his physician; also the relation of the physician to his patient. We find that the patient owes obedience to orders and payment of a reasonable fee; the physician owes to his patient his best judgement, due diligence and a reasonable amount of skill. The contract between them is implied; so it is with the exhibitor and the judge. The exhibitor makes a contract to accept his placings while the judge is bound by an implied contract when he accepts the assignment that he will give his honest opinion after careful examination. And here is oft-times "the rub".

Most of the exhibitors complain, and rightly so, that [there should be] careful examination no matter if the judge at a glance knows that said dog has no chance whatever - the owner has paid the fee and that is what it is paid for. I have often heard at the ringside "Why he did not even look at my dog!" That is one complaint that should never be heard. The judge owes a courtesy to every exhibitor who is doing him an honor to exhibit under him. The judge should remember that he is the servant of the Club and not a martinet - the novice should be given as much or more consideration than the seasoned exhibitor. The judge should endeavor to put all novices at ease as he must know that they are under considerable nerve strain.

Looking at them from inside the ring it is no easy task and not one to be taken lightly. A man or woman should wait until they feel that they have a good working idea of the breed before they venture in there to pass on them. Some are too anxious and start before they are really ready. This is not fair to the exhibitor or to yourself. Some learn too fast and know all there is to be known about the breed in a few short months. These are to be pitied, for when one knows all there is to know about anything, as he or she may think, then they are through, for the mind closes and no more information can get in. There is much talk now about the Collie standard and a movement is on foot for revision of same. Perhaps it needs some revision, but to my mind it needs some clarification and more understanding.

The real standard of the Collie is in the minds eye. The picture of the perfect collie should be there. You, of course, will never actually see one but you are always looking for one. All have faults but faults do not disqualify. They penalize. Some judges are hepped on some particular fault and when they see this in a dog he may as well have stayed at home. This is wrong. Faults should be evaluated and compared as to which is worse in the final analysis. First look for values and see what is good about the dog. Then fault him for the final placing. Look at the whole dog. The head is important but body and running gear are just as much so, and conformation and coat and general behavior all enter into the picture for making final judgment. Forget the reputation of the dog or the exhibitor, and judge as you see him today.

One last word to the exhibitor. Do not presume on the judge's intelligence by trying to show him some good point about your dog. If he knows his business he will see it and you will often antagonize him by pointing this out in the ring. If he asks you to smooth the dogs head back while he is comparing him with another dog, well and good, but unless he asks, let him do this himself.

We are striving all the time for better dogs. We have made wonderful progress and we will do more. The collie is rapidly coming into his own and we are rightly proud of our dogs. Let us try to make our dogs proud of us by striving for better judges and better exhibitors."

My Knitting Project

When Jim and I visited South Africa at Christmas 2006 I was really touched by all the poverty. We were visiting our son's future father in law (Barry) and he told us about the kids supported by the bank he worked for. The bank supplied feeding stations for about 800 kids (mostly Aids orphans) who came each day for one meal.

One of the things these kids needed was warm woolly jumpers as temperatures plummet during the nights in the winter to minus six degrees. I promised that when I arrived home I would knit some jumpers to be shipped out. The kids are of all ages up to about 14 years old.

I mentioned this to some friends and they all agreed to knit a jumper for me and that is how the project started. I decided to put a request on an internet Shetland Sheepdog list I belong to and never in a million years would I have known what a response this would get.

From that day on; jumpers have been sent out to Africa in batches. All were beautifully knitted in very bright colours which is what the kids love. Those that cannot knit donate wool so that others may knit it up. People I have never met are sending jumpers through the post. It is truly amazing.

I received some photos taken when the jumpers were given out. How wonderful to see them and to try to pick out jumpers we have knitted. I hope that you will agree that it is a very worthwhile cause and one that will carry on for quite a while. Now that I have started knitting I find I cannot stop. Friends are finding forgotten skills and saying it is very therapeutic.

The total number of jumpers sent to date is now over 1,500 and still rising.

Barry is now working back in the UK so we have had to find another place for the jumpers to go. Luckily after an internet search I found Hope House www.christianhope.org.uk. These people are working in Africa and Eastern Europe and are delighted to take our jumpers and as they are only an hour from us I can deliver them to their warehouse.

If anybody has any spare wool or would like to knit a jumper for me please contact me on 01621 816203. Or email me at ramtin@btinternet.com. They can be sent direct to Hope House or I can collect them at some shows I attend.

Memories of Hilltop House

By Margaret Dobson

I first met Joan and Beryl at the Royal Lancashire Agricultural Show introduced by Mrs Fishpool (Ellington), I'm not sure of the actual date but this must have been in the late 1950's-early 60's. The show was held for a number of years in Blackpool in the area which is now the zoo.

During the following years, we began to know them better and we were invited quite a number of times to Hilltop House for Sunday lunch. These were very sociable occasions as kennel maid Sylvia and their brother were always included.

Beryl was an extremely good cook and there was always a lovely selection of deserts to choose from. Silver, china and crystal adorned the dining table. Amongst these were two small delightful pieces of silver and crystal containing sugared almonds a photo of which I have included.

Imagine our delight when one of these was given to us as a gift on our Silver Wedding Anniversary.

Walking in to the hall of Hilltop you could not fail to notice beautifully carved furniture.

To one side of the house was what looked like a stable block but this was where puppies were housed. The main kennels, large wooden buildings, were sectioned into smaller sleeping areas with a name over each one.

There were large paddocks for the dogs to run about in, a lovely setting for their numerous Shelties, which we were always invited to go into and meet them.

I was fortunate to have been at Hilltop when the Shelert's were at the top. The lovely blue Ch She's My Fancy was a bitch I never judged but had the pleasure of going over her at their invitation on one of my visits.

One last thing – Joan & Beryl loved damson gin as quite a few will know who were invited to test their home made brew at some of the shows.

When they found out we had an orchard full of damson trees at our home in Clifton Village, either they paid us a visit in late August or we were invited to take some over to Hilltop and always the following year there would be a gift of a bottle of damson gin.

Happy memories indeed of a house and its owners.

Memories of Hilltop House

By Malcolm Hart

I first visited Hilltop House near Spofforth Yorkshire in 1968 and, although there were many subsequent visits, the aura of the place never diminished - and continued after the demise of the Herbert Sisters when Margaret Norman (Searle) continued to live there.

The house - set on a hill with woods to front and side - was a lovely place, slightly reminiscent of a Mediterranean home, and who couldn't fail to be impressed driving through the wrought iron gates incorporating boldly the word Shelert! The drive turned sharply left, down the side of two extensive grass runs containing huge wooden kennelling buildings.

My mouth fell open when I got out of the car and waited for the two Miss Herberts to appear, when I counted approximately 125 bitches in these runs, all sable except for three tricolours - this was shortly before Shelert's successful venture into blue merles. To the left of these runs were about 6 loose box stables which contained dams and litters of pups. To the rear of the large enclosures were the stud dog and young male quarters with what appeared to contain 10 or so dogs.

Old champions were house pets who slept, we were told, in the basement next to the central heating boiler. There were always three live-in kennel girls as far as I could ascertain.

The sisters were never less than formally polite - and it was many years later that I was invited to refrain from addressing them as Miss Herbert with 'Miss Beryl' and 'Miss Joan' 'suggested' as being more appropriate. I never did feel comfortable in complying with the next stage when invited to call them solely by their Christian names!

The sisters came into the world of showdogs from an initial very successful period as breeders of show rabbits - and always drove large Volvo Estate cars, essential for toting boxes of rabbits to shows. I might add that I was passed on the way to shows by the Volvo never apparently doing less than 90 miles per hour! But I never actually saw the horns on Joan's head which she must have grown each time she got behind the wheel!

There was always a team of Shelerts entered for shows and all apparently answered to 'come along Poppet'. And the sight of Joan and Beryl pushing and pulling a trolley burdened with 4 cages filled with dogs, two garden chairs and a wicker picnic hamper perched on top through ankle deep mud from the car park at one very wet Leeds Championship show is still the motivation for getting me to shows. If they could do it at their age, why not me!

And Joan making an entrance at a Northern Counties Open show held in the tiny Hugh Ripley Memorial Hall at Ripon - three dogs in each hand, each of which 'captured' a ring side chair in their leashes without Joan noticing and then proceeded to tow the chairs with them down the ring, Joan still oblivious- is indeed one of my most cherished humorous memories.

Joan usually handled her dogs under the watchful and sometimes critical eye of Beryl. Joan always donned a large pinny with a voluminous pocket in front, which contained a wide variety of 'attention grabbers' for her dogs. I have seen her produce chunks of chicken, liver, a wedge of cheese, a liberal quantity of rustling silver paper, a small ball on a string, a yoyo and even on one occasion, as a last resort to capture the imagination of one particularly disinterested dog, what looked suspiciously like a chicken wing complete with feathers which she proceeded to flap up and down wildly!

They were dedicated and virtually ever present exhibitors, with a seemingly endless supply of 'new ones' to bring out - and the show scene is the poorer for the loss of their unique characters and personalities.

My Fondest Memory of Beryl Herbert (Shelert)

By Jan Grice

Much has been written over the years about Joan and Beryl Herbert, who lived at Hilltop House in Yorkshire UK with their brother Ken, and their Shelert Shelties, and you can find many interesting stories written about them by various friends in the breed.

The Yorkshire Shetland Sheepdog Club's Year Book 2000 has an interesting article by Margaret Norman (Searle), and several of the English Shetland Sheepdog Club Hand Books have stories of Shelert (e.g. the 1980 book with an article written by Joan Herbert herself, and 1990 and 2000 have articles by Margaret Norman (Searle)).

Beryl and Joan wrote their own book The Shetland Sheepdog (a 'Foyles' Handbook) first published in 1961, which was the very first book about Shelties that I purchased, and became my bible, especially when whelping a litter.

Beryl and Joan always had animals at Hilltop House, but became interested in Shelties during WW2, and purchased their first Sheltie – Jasper Of Melvaig, from Mrs Charlton.

Riverhill Royal Flush (bred by the Misses Rogers) became Beryl and Joan Herbert's first champion in 1951.

The first champions to carry the Shelert name were Ch Midas Of Shelert and Ch Symphony Of Shelert in 1958, and at least 26 more champions followed over the years.

It was during Beryl's visits to the late Margaret Norman (Searle) at Nixon's Cottage in Cheshire UK, once the home of Francehill Shelties, that I had the pleasure of meeting her several times, and my fondest memory of Beryl, surprisingly, involves a kitten!

Beryl was upset at the loss of her old cat, so Margaret's late husband Jimmie asked me to find a kitten for Beryl while she was on one of her stays at the Francehill kennel. I had misgivings as to whether she would accept a young kitten, but dear Jimmie was full of enthusiasm and sure that Beryl would like one. So Jimmie and I headed off to see a litter of eight week old cross Persians. The sweetest of things (apart from Sheltie puppies of course), and Jimmie chose a black female.

I drove Jimmie home with the kitten and dropped him off outside Nixon's Cottage clutching the kitten in his arms, and I sped away as fast as my little Austin Mini would go, churning up a trail of dust in my wake and leaving Jimmie to face the music!

It was only a couple of hours later when I got 'the' phone call from Jimmie to ask if I would like to have the kitten! And so, Holly arrived at our house early the very next morning.

It was with great amusement that we found out that Holly was actually a male, and so my husband Ray re-named him Buddy Holly, and in turn, affectionately – Buddy. He grew to be an enormous long haired affectionate cat who became the 'leader of the Sheltie pack' at our home for the next fifteen years. Every time I looked at him, it brought back fond memories of those in the breed that we have now lost.

(Joan Herbert passed away in 1990, Beryl Herbert in 1995, Jimmie Norman in 2001, and Margaret Norman (Searle) in 2009)

KENNEL CLUB ANNOUNCEMENT

MERLE COLOURING IN THE SHETLAND SHEEPDOG

At the request of the Shetland Sheepdog Breed Council, the Kennel Club agreed that with effect from 6th July 2010, it will no longer accept the registration of any Shetland Sheepdog puppies that are produced as a result of mating two merle coloured parents together.

Coat colour in the Shetland Sheepdog is complex because a range of colours is acceptable. Merle patterning, patches of lighter colour appearing in the coat, is the result of the M gene in the dog. There are two alleles of this gene: M<sup>M</sup> (merle) and M+ (non-merle), with merle (M<sup>M</sup>) being dominant to non-merle (M+). In some breeds, the effect of the merle allele (M<sup>M</sup>) is termed 'dapple'.

Unfortunately, the effects of the merle allele (M<sup>M</sup>) are not confined to coat patterning. The Kennel Club is aware that there can be an increased risk of impaired hearing and sight associated with it, particularly in dogs that are homozygous for M<sup>M</sup> (dogs that carry two copies of the M<sup>M</sup> allele), and has therefore agreed not to register any progeny born as a result of mating two merle parents.

The Story of Macdega Pirouette

We would have liked very much to have gone to Copenhagen for the World Show but two new litters and judging commitments made that impossible. We were so pleased to learn that Macdega Pirouette was a 2010 World Winner. This, as requested, is a bit of information about Pirouette, known to her friends as “Rudy.”

Rudy was from a litter of five pups, all sables, whelped on June 3rd 2007.

Rudy’s dam, Am. Grand Champion Macdega Apropos (14”), call name “Pippen”, is a multiple Specialty and Herding Group winner. Apropos is sired by our tri Ch Pop Star SS of Northern Farm ROM, ROMC, (15”), who is by Ch. Macdega Evergreen, who is out of Ch. Macdega Sultana ROM. Pop Star, sire of 29 Am. Champions, was Best of Breed at the 2007 ASSA National and BOS at the 2010 National at eleven and a half years of age. Apropos’s dam, Ch Macdega Clairvoyant, is our favorite of the ten champions produced from the breeding of Ch Macdega Sausalito ROM, ROMC (40 Am. Chs.) and Macdega Rendezvous (10 Am. Chs).

Rudy’s sire, Ch Trevanne’s Pelletier (15 1/2”, sire of 8 Am. Chs) is a Sausalito son who is out of Ch Trevanne’s Brown Sugar, a bitch of wonderful lasting quality that has done excellent winning as a veteran. We leased Pelletier in 2007 from Tammie Gabrielson, who resides in California, to use on two of our own bitches and to make him available to East Coast breeders.

From an early age Rudy was our favorite of the litter and we dubbed her “Pippin Jr.” because of her strong resemblance to her dam. She grew without awkward stages – always retaining her moderation, overall balance, easy movement and sensible temperament.

In the late fall of 2007, Nada Kajander and her daughter came for a visit to see our dogs. Nada was immediately smitten with Rudy and eventually we agreed to let Rudy make the trip to Finland. The rest is history thanks to Nada’s excellent care and presentation.

Special thanks to judge Mrs. Birte Scheel for this very special honor.

At the World Dog Show in Denmark

I'm the proud and happy owner of "Rudy" aka World Winner -10 Latvian Winner - 09 International & Finnish & Norwegian & Danish & Latvian & Estonian & Lithuanian Champion Macdega Pirouette. Rudy came to us at 10 months of age and fit right in our big family. She is the kindest and funniest little girl. She has done very well being shown mainly at the biggest shows around here (Finland and the nearby countries). She has won the Group -1 three times and placed second and fourth twice. It will be interesting to see what we can achieve in the future. Thank you very much Thomas and Nioma for your friendship and for trusting me this beauty!

Shelties In Art

© Copyright: 2010 Jeannie McNally

Meet the artist. . . Originally from New York, my husband and I have made our home in "Vacationland" Maine for most of our 40 years together. We both love animals and have surrounded ourselves with birds, dogs and cats throughout the years. I am a "self-taught" artist and have painted since childhood. About 25 years ago we began raising Shelties as a hobby and have shown our dogs in conformation during this time. We were fortunate to have put championship titles on several of our dogs and still show today on a limited basis. But since my interest lies more in painting dogs than breeding them, I am very happy to stay at home now and paint the dogs I love.

This is a pastel by the late Angela Rush (Angelrush) USA. Created in 2003. It was copied from a photograph of Sandwich Shimmer (UK) that I (Ed) sent to Angela at that time, and I believe the original painting that Angela produced was donated as a prize at a dog show in USA. Angela had lived in the small village of Uphill in Somerset UK for a short while during WW2 and emigrated to USA soon afterwards.

This is a graphite pencil drawing by Mike Sibley from North Yorkshire UK.

Produced as an A3 (15½"x11½") open edition giclée print.

Mike and his wife Jenny live in North Yorkshire, UK, and have had many breeds over the years, from Italian Greyhounds and Yorkies to Borzois and German Shepherds. Now they have Parson Russell Terriers and Shetland Ponies. Mike, a professional pencil artist for 30 years, is known worldwide for his canine drawings, and now spends most of his time teaching drawing in the UK, USA and Canada and online.

'Donna' (Marklin Donna Of Davedale) is a pastel created by Jenny Davis of 'Davedale' UK. Jenny and her husband Mike have been in the breed for 45 years, and although no longer show, they are still involved with show training in the South Midlands UK.

Jenny and Mike have enjoyed doing art work for many years, but have taken it more seriously over the last seven years, with Jenny working in pastels and water colours, and Mike using water colours, pencil and ink.

This Pastel of Ch. Tegwel Sandwick Storm was produced By Malcolm Hart of 'Hartmere' (UK) Malcolm was raised in the beautiful Lake District (Cumbria) in UK, and now lives in Lincolnshire.

Malcolm has forty years experience in the breed.

When he was 10 years old, Malcolm won the Under 12's Young UK Artist of the Year Competition which was sponsored by Cadbury's.

Malcolm enjoys painting landscapes, seascapes and portraits. He also enjoys equine and canine painting. He paints in oils, water colour, and pastel - with no particular favourite.

The rules on pet imports were changed on 14 June 2010

Pet import rules were changed on 14 June 2010. Further changes will be made in the summer of 2011 and on 1 January 2012. On this latter day, several of the current requirements will be removed, due to an agreement at the EU level.

The rules on importing cats and dogs depend on from what country they are imported. Below, you will find information on the changes that apply within the EU, and to imports of cats and dogs from countries outside the EU. You will also find more information on our general pages on cat and dog import, and on our page on classification of countries.

Import from EU countries

The requirements regarding identity marking, rabies vaccination, approved antibody level, de-worming and passport remain unchanged. Please note that the animals must be identity marked before the first rabies vaccination. A vaccination performed without the animal being marked is not valid for travel, no exemptions are made from this rule.

New rules from 14 June 2010 for EU countries

- The fee for applying for an import license for a puppy or kitten younger than three months is increased to SEK 900. However, you may now include five animals in your application.
- Danes travelling to the island of Bornholm through Sweden may bring their dogs and cats without de-worming, but all other requirements remain unchanged.
- If you travel with six or more pets together, they will need a health check 24 hours before departure, since they are treated as trade animals.
- A new type of rabies vaccine is approved, so-called recombinant rabies vaccines.

New rules from 3 July 2011 for EU countries

- From 3 July 2011 tattooing is no longer an approved form of identity marking. All travelling cats and dogs will have to be microchipped.

New rules from 1 January 2012 for EU countries

- Antibody testing is no longer required.
- The current rules on de-worming will be amended, but the details are not yet decided.

Import from listed non-EU countries

The requirements regarding identity marking, rabies vaccination, approved antibody level, de-worming and passport will remain unchanged. Please note that the animals must be identity marked before vaccination. A vaccination performed without the animal being marked is not valid for travel, no exemptions are made from this rule.

New rules from 14 June 2010 from listed countries

- The fee for applying for an import license for a puppy or kitten younger than three months is increased to SEK 900. However, you may now include five animals in your application.

- Trade animals from Norway, that is dogs and cats that will be sold or change owner or travel as cargo with or without the owner must be identity marked, vaccinated against rabies, have an approved antibody titre, and pass a health check within 24 hours before departure.

New rules from 3 July 2011 from listed countries

- From July 3, 2011 tattooing is not an approved form of ID-marking. All travelling cats and dogs will have to be microchipped.

News from 1 January 2012 from listed countries

- Antibody testing is no longer required.
- The current rules on de-worming will be amended, but the details are not yet decided.

Import from unlisted non-EU countries

The current requirements will not change this summer. The animals still need to be identity marked, dewormed, have an import license and be quarantined. Please note that tattooing will no longer be an approved identification method from 3 July 2011. From that day forward, all travelling animals need to be microchipped.

New rules from 1 January 2012 from unlisted non-EU countries

- Quarantine is replaced by: identification by microchip + rabies vaccination + approved antibody titre 30 days after vaccination + an additional 90 days of waiting after the antibody test + veterinary certificate.
- The current rules on de-worming will be amended, but the details are not yet decided.

The rabies situation in Europe has improved, but is not satisfactory

The rabies situation in Europe has improved greatly in the last 10 years, but has not quite yet reached the level where pets are no longer at risk of being infected. The EU commission believes that this goal will be reached in 2012.

This is the reason why the EU has decided to extend the transitional rules for travelling with pet animals to and within the EU. The extension applies until 31 December 2011 and comprises all transitional rules currently in force regarding imports to Sweden, Finland, United Kingdom, Ireland, and Malta.

On 1 January 2012 all transitional rules will cease to apply. From then all, the same rules apply in the entire EU. However, it is likely that a new EU-wide system for protection against fox tapeworm will be implemented in 2012.

BOB WEATHERWAX

Of interest to all Lassie fans, positive training enthusiasts, and dog lovers of all description... Bob Weatherwax announced on his web site this morning that he has started training a new puppy, aptly named 'Pal' in tribute to the Collie who starred in the original 'Lassie Come Home', and Bob's first Collie (his father Rudd Weatherwax owned and trained Pal, and Bob grew up with the dog as his 'babysitter'!).

The pup is pictured on the homepage. Bob and Weatherwax Trained Dogs are also now on Facebook! There's a "like" button on the website home page (scan down toward the bottom) and another one on the Facebook page.

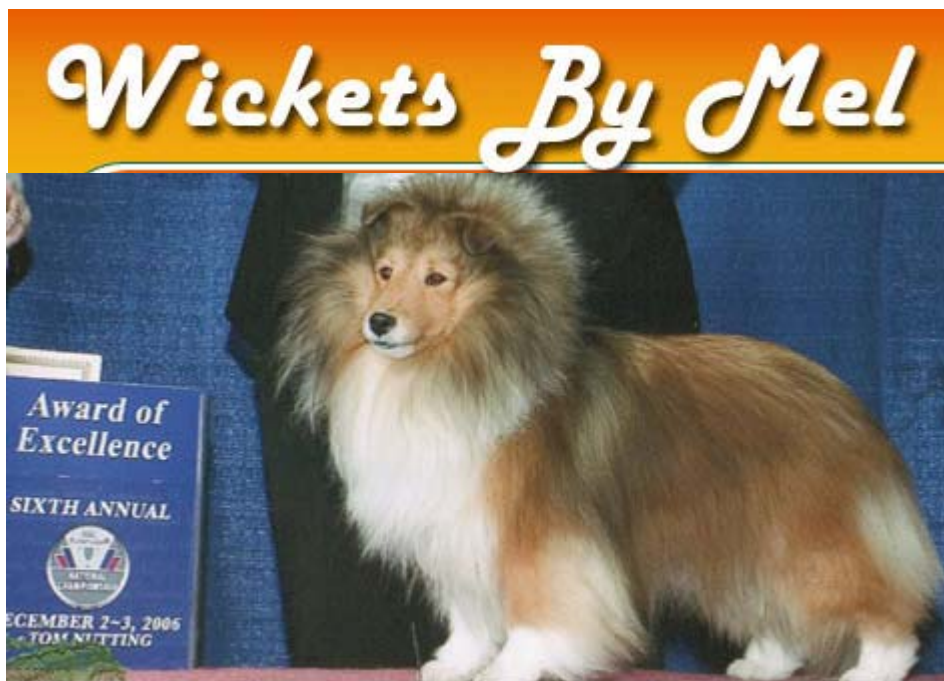

It would be nice for all of us to visit both pages, and let Bob know how grateful we are for the many years of dedication he's had to the dogs he and his dad made famous, and the inspiration he's provided to so many dog lovers, families and children of all ages.

Advertising in Global Shelties Magazine

The Editor will accept a limited number of adverts from businesses and clubs wanting to sell/promote dog related items. All that is asked is that for each advert, you personally make a small donation to the American Shetland Sheepdog Association Foundation <http://www.assa.org/foundation.html> stipulating that the donation is for the sole purpose of Dermatomyositis (DM/FCD) research.

Please send your advert to the Editor for consideration first, and if the advert is approved, you will be notified, and then asked to make your donation, and forward a copy of your donation receipt to the Editor.

The Editor reserves the right to refuse unsuitable adverts, and to use what space is available.

- Adverts will only be accepted for goods and services.
- Adverts will be accepted on the discretion of the Editor.
- No adverts will be accepted for 'kennels' or puppy sales.

Adverts will be accepted for a one time insertion or a year's (four editions) listing (See below for suggested donations).

- A one time only advert, text only .....£10/$15
- A one time only advert with small photo....£15/$23
- A four edition advert, text only.....£30/$47
- A four edition advert with small photo.....£35/$55

Please use the form below to make your donation.

The Editors and correspondents hope you have found something of interest in this edition of 'Global Shelties Magazine'

The Editor would like to sincerely thank Ann Billington for all her help as Co-Ed in previous editions, and welcome Alex McKay as our new temporary Co-Editor

If you enjoyed the Christmas Greetings Supplement last year, we are quite happy to do something similar this year, with Free NEW YEAR Greetings.

Just send me (Ed) a short two line greeting (sorry – no pictures) and your Free New Year Greeting will be seen around the Globe!

An example of the Greeting would be something like this:

*Jane and Bryce Davies of the Welshelt Kennels UK
Send New Year Greetings to all Sheltie owners around the Globe*

The deadline for items for the December edition will be 3rd December
